Detailed Report:

- A workshop was conducted at Lloyd Business School on Behaviorally Anchored Rating Methods for self-introspection and appraisal for sensitized corporate presence during internships. PGDM students organized it. The workshop stressed key behavioural-anchored questions addressed during interviews and required skilled answers.

- The trainer for the session was Prof Kapoor (expert in BARS), supported by Dr Neetu Kamra, Associate Professor Lloyd Business School. The student's response and feedback have been phenomenal and beyond expectations, which resounds the takeaway from the session.

Learning Outcomes:

- The workshop intended to equip students with key skill-building in their self-introspection and behavioural modifications as reflected from the post-interview feedback, which would assist them to better create an image and persona in the corporate during the Internship or in the process of searching for an Internship through self-realization of behavioural modifications in a corporate setting.
