A team achieves more than an individual - if it is well managed and the team members work together in harmony, keeping the spirit of cohesiveness. A 3-hour workshop for Management Students at Lloyd was conducted on 29th January 2022 by Prof. SC Kapoor and Dr. Neetu Kamra. The workshop is intended to support teams in achieving common goals, creating a positive culture of debate, and developing the team's personality.

What sounds simple in theory requires systematic work in practice, which deals with scintillating stories, management games, group exercises, advertisements, and anecdotes recitation. In the team building programs, therefore, the use of instruments that convey direct experiences of how a team works well together, what drives a team's performance and what serves to simplify cooperation, which was the winning edge of the program's success?

The workshop was attended online by 80 management students; the platform also dealt with conflict resolution, which is equally important to celebrate in dynamic and creative teams. The student's feedback was recorded as well, which was a great motivator and booster.

Learning Outcomes:

- The students' recorded feedback indicated that the workshop was a great motivator and booster for them.
